Karate is an individual endeavor. Each person is taught and advanced according to his/her own ability. Initially, you will learn a basic foundation of karate techniques on which to build. Fundamentals of actual street and sport karate are later incorporated into your training as well as the Isshinryu kata. All classes include stretching and calisthenics. To be effective in karate, you must be in optimum shape.

This book lists the minimal testing criteria for each belt level. Your sensei will decide when you are ready for testing, even if you have met the listed criteria. The rank criteria are simply a guide for the student. Practice is very important to prepare yourself for learning and advancement.

To be a true black belt, you must not rush through the kyu ranks. Take advantage of that time to practice and improve all techniques and kata. We can never stop learning or improving ourselves. The secret of martial arts success is practice.

Like uniforms are required during class representing tradition and equality in students.

The main objective of Isshinryu is the perfection of oneself through both physical and mental development. Ash's Karate combines teaching Isshinryu karate with a well-rounded exercise program.

MISSION STATEMENT: To instill confidence, courtesy, and respect while building mental and physical strength, self discipline, balance, focus, endurance and perseverance in students so that they may empower themselves to overcome physical and mental obstacles, build character and unify mind, body and spirit.

Lil' Dragons

How can my child benefit from Karate?

We understand the problems unique to youngsters, and the concerns parents naturally have. The well organized, professionally planned Lil' Dragons' program is designed to be valuable for parents in the task of building a child's self confidence, positive outlook and self esteem. They learn to take pride in themselves and their accomplishments, soon come out of their shells, begin to participate, and learn to make friends easier. Attention spans increase as do motor skills and performance at sports and other activities.

Also, learning how to deal with "strangers" or unusual situations is very important in today's society and we teach kids stranger safety issues.

In this class, the children will be able to advance in rank up to Orange belt. When it is time for him/her to test for a belt, one of our instructors will tell you in advance.

Our main goals are to have your child benefit from individual and group physical activities, encourage discipline and respect, learn stranger safety, improve listening skills, follow directions and have fun! Advancing in belt levels is not our first priority in the Lil' Dragons' program.

Job Lists

We currently have a "Job List" in effect which helps students and parents evaluate all aspects of a student's life including home, school and behavior. Every week that the job list is completed, signed and approved by a sensei, the student will receive a "Karate Dollar" that can be used towards the purchase of "Karate Dollar" items.

Lil' Dragons' Codes

1. Never talk to strangers
2. Never punch or kick other people (family, friends, classmates)
3. Always do your very best
4. Always follow directions
5. Always be respectful

HISTORY OF ISSHINRYU

Born in 1906, Tatsuo Shimabuku began training in Karate at the age of eight. His first instructor was his uncle, who taught Shuri-te Karate 12 miles away in the town of Shuri. Each day, Shimabuku would walk to Shuri and perform certain chores in exchange for his Karate training.

Later, Shimabuku studied Master Chotoku Kyan's style of Shorin-Ryu. He also studied Goju-Ryu under Master Chojun Miyagi. Master Shimabuku studied under Master Choki Motobu, who at this time was a legend on the island of Okinawa for his fighting ability.

Tatsuo Shimabuku won great recognition for his kata at a large Martial Arts festival. He began to study Kobudo (Okinawan weapons) under Okinawan weapons' Master Taira Shinken. By this time, Shimabuku had developed an outstanding reputation throughout the island of Okinawa.

At the beginning of World War II, Shimabuku was a karate instructor and owned a small manufacturing plant. The plant was destroyed in the early part of the war. In order to avoid being forced into military service by the Japanese soldiers, Shimabuku hid in the mountains. The Japanese soldiers found him. They agreed to keep his hiding place a secret if he would teach them karate. Shimabuku continued to farm and practiced karate in private for his own spiritual and physical benefit.

Master Shimabuku included what he felt were the "best" elements from each style into a new system, which he called Isshinryu, which means "one heart style". The official birth date of Isshinryu is January 15, 1956. Isshinryu epitomizes the powerful, lightning-fast techniques that, in ancient time, enable the weaponless Okinawans to defeat the sword-wielding Samurai Warrior of Japan.

In developing Isshinryu, Master Shimabuku utilized the sage oriental philosophy of the "hard" and the "soft", which emphasizes strength through speed and accuracy. Muscles are relaxed until the point of contact. He used a vertical punch with the thumb placed on top of the fist, which strengthened the wrist. This style of punch could be easily forced, produced increasing speed, was easily retracted and avoided positions in which the elbow could be injured. This way of punching also fit into the solar plexus better.

For Isshinryu, Shimabuku used what he felt were the best katas from Shorin-Ryu and Goju-Ryu. These katas are common to most styles of Okinawan karate. These katas were modified by Shimabuku to fit the mold that he designed for Isshinryu. The only kata Master Shimabuku created himself is Sunsū, meaning "strong man", Shimabuku's nickname. Sunsū embodies techniques from other katas. Shimabuku's given name at birth was Shinkichi.

On May 30, 1975, Grandmaster Shimabuku died. His dream continues to live on. Thousands of men, women, and children keep his dream alive by studying Isshinryu the world over.
